

Today: tehran was experiencing a heavy atmosphere. While the reformist candidates, mousavi and karoubi, have given several declarations in which they want to cancel this election and hold another, thousands of people gathered in 7th Tir sq. to continue their protests. My rough estimate is 10,000 at 5:00 pm.

All the cars bibbed near 7th Tir sq. which is in the central parts of Tehran city.

Maybe a strike happens tomorrow Tuesday. I'm not sure about it.

At least 10 were arrested today. No confirmation of probable wounded by bullets or dead.

The guards (basij & Pasdars) used teargas and shoot to the air. They abused the protesters by their bottoms and kicked them savagely as usual.

Certain traffic obligation rules were posed in Tehran. For example the government had banned Fatemi st., where the ministry of interior affairs is or they had banned Karimkhan st. which goes to 7th Tir sq.

Thousands of Basijis were organized from morning to suppress the demonstrators.

The demonstrators use English placards in their protests. They want to show the world the crimes of this régime.

Personally I have seen some clerics in all the demonstrations. Here are some photos (<http://news.gooya.com>):
